EDITORIAL.

UNFORTUNATELY we are not possessed with the pen of a ready writer, so we will endeavour to be brief and to the point. As usual the greater part of our number is occupied with War News, and we feel that great thanks are due to the Committee for the untiring energy with which they devote themselves to a task which seems almost overwhelming in itself. Our losses, as can be seen in other pages, have been very considerable during the past few weeks. We tender our deepest sympathy to Mr. Stokoe on the loss of his elder son and also to Dr. and Mrs. Cressey. The death of George Cressey especially affects the School in that only fifteen months ago he was here among us as Captain of the School and as a leader in all branches of School life.

The O.T.C. is flourishing and is carrying out much the same programme as it has throughout the past year; it has already taken part in two Field Days with troops quartered in the district; we hope they will not be the last.

The prospects for the coming football matches are not very encouraging, but we heartily wish the XV. every success.

In conclusion we make no apology for any curtailment there may be of various items of School News, as we feel that at such a time as this precedence should be given to all that deals with the war.

LECTURE.

On October 15th, at 8 p.m., Mr. F. Coleman lectured to the School on "Ten Months on Active Service." He was fortunate enough, he told us, to get out to Flanders just before the Battle of Mons and went through the whole of the fighting there until April. His reminiscences were exceedingly interesting, and not a few times most amusing. Among other things he paid a very high tribute to the nonchalance and high spirits of the British Tommy, when he declared there was no other soldier he had known in the three or four campaigns through which he had been so unconcerned and free from care.

The lecture ended by the School giving three hearty cheers for the lecturer, who had provided them with such an amusing and interesting account of his experiences.

DEBATING SOCIETY.

On Wednesday, October 20th, the Society met in the Lecture Room to discuss the motion "That this House fails to agree with those who deprecate the censorship."

Mr. Morris proposed the motion, seconded by Mr. Arundel. Mr. Arnold opposed, seconded by Mr. Heap.

The following also spoke: Messrs. Hemming, Hale (2), Evans, Porter.

The motion was defeated by 14 votes to 8.

On Wednesday, October 27th, the Society met in the Lecture Room to discuss the motion "That in the opinion of this House the [study of the classics is not the best education."

Mr. Bennett proposed the motion, seconded by Mr. Culhane. Mr. Hale opposed, seconded by Mr. Marshall.

The following also spoke: Messrs. Turner, Arundel, Evans, Nott-Bower (2), Steinthal (2), Fuller (2), Heap (2), Earle (2), Eyles, Gamble, Caney (2), Galpin.

The motion was carried by 12 votes to 11.

O.T. NEWS.

THE WAR LIST.

THE THIRD EDITION of the List of Old Tonbridgians and Masters serving in H.M. and Allied Forces included the names of 1,418 Old Tonbridgians and 16 Masters, of whom 50 had given their lives and 99 others had been wounded.

With the additional names and the corrections given below the numbers are now 1544 Old Tonbridgians and 16 Masters, of whom 80 are known to have given their lives, 8 are missing and 141 others have been officially reported wounded once or more.

It is not proposed to issue another full list till sometime next year.

Details as to additional names, promotions, etc., will be given in each number of "The Tonbridgian," as well as biographical notices of those who have given their lives. These notices will be republished with the final list which it is proposed to issue after the end of the War.

The Committee will be very grateful for any help from parents, O.T.'s and others; and all information both with regard to additions, changes and corrections for the List, and also with a view to the biographical notices for "The Tonbridgian" and for publication at the end of the War, should be sent to Mr. H. R. Stokoe, Park House, Tonbridge.

In January, 1881, he joined the Bengal Staff College and in October, 1912, attained the rank of Major-General. In |
|--|--|

1887 he married a daughter of Major-General Rodney Brown, R.A.

He entered the Remount Department in 1892 and had been Director-General of the Department since 1908. He died at Colombo on his way back to India from Australia where he had been on deputation in connection with remounts. The Civil and Military Gazette of Lahore bears testimony to his services to horse-breeding in India, and in recording his death, says:—

“There was widespread regret in Simla at the news of Major-General Broome’s death, and his loss will be a severe blow to the Department which he has controlled for seven years with such marked success. Major-General Broome was not in the best of health when he left India, and news has reached Bombay that the cause of his death was toxicæmia. He was one of the most popular men in social circles in Simla, and as Grand Master of the Order of the Black Hearts was one of the most hospitable of hosts. It is understood that Mrs. Broome was travelling with her husband, and much sympathy is felt with her.”

SERGEANT STEWART ALGERNON
CLARKE, 6TH BATT. THE BUFFS
(EAST KENT REGT.).

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR HULLUCH,
OCTOBER 13TH, 1915. AGED 34.

At the School 1893—95 (Day Boy).

Stewart Algernon Clarke was the sixth son of the late Rev. James Sanderson Clarke, Vicar of Goudhurst, Kent, and Mrs. Clarke, of 198, Denmark Hill, S.E., and a brother of the Rev. Kenneth Clarke (Parkside 1889—93), Vicar of St. Mark’s, Lewisham, S.E. He had been on the Stock Exchange ever since he left School, and became a Member of the House in 1904. He was a Member of the Kent Numismatic Society, and his great hobby lately had been “tokens.” He was, says a correspondent, a “real good fellow and a delightful companion with a host of friends.”

On the outbreak of war he acted as a Cycle Patrol on the Kentish coast and then enlisted with the other men in the 6th Batt. of the Buffs and in time became Machine Gun Sergeant. He was offered one or two Commissions, but would not take them as he was unwilling to leave the men he enlisted with and wanted to serve in the Buffs, as East Kent was his home.

His officer writes: “He was killed on the night of the 13-14th (October). We were attacking a portion of the German trenches and he was in charge of the gun which had to advance to the captured trench. He died whilst leading his team in the most gallant fashion. In the whole battalion there was hardly a man more looked up to than Sergt. Clarke, and this regard he had won for himself entirely by his own personal merit. Of all that he meant to me I can give you no idea. I always looked on him as a brother officer to whom I could go for advice and whose advice was always worth taking. The men of the machine gun section absolutely worshipped him, and whatever hardship they have had to go through there was never any complaint, because they knew they could trust their Sergeant to get the best possible for them."

One of his brothers, the 3rd son, Basil Edward Clarke, who was serving as a Private in the 7th Batt. of the 1st Canadian Contingent, has been missing since the Canadians lost so heavily near Ypres on April 24th.

MAJOR ARCHIBALD THOMAS WYNNE
CONSTABLE, ESSEX REGT.

DIED FROM WOUNDS RECEIVED IN ACTION
NEAR BETHUNE, OCTOBER 16TH, 1915.
AGED 32.

At the School 1896—99 (Ferox Hall).

Maj. A. T. W. Constable was the only son of the Rev. Thomas Constable and Mrs. Constable, of Hurstwood Vicarage, Uckfield, Sussex. He entered the School from Cothill, Abingdon, in 1896, and joined the 4th Battalion (Militia) of the Essex Regiment in 1900, and in the following year was gazetted to the 2nd Battalion, and shortly afterwards went out to S. Africa in charge of a large draft. He served in S. Africa for about six months, receiving the Queen's Medal with three clasps. After being with the Regiment at Malta for some time, he was posted to a Provisional Battalion at Dover, and then rejoined the Regiment in Ireland. Whilst there the Regiment was sent from the Curragh to assist in quelling the celebrated Belfast riots, and he there saw some very rough work, worse, he said, than anything he had experienced in S. Africa, cobblestones and even vitriol being extensively employed by the rioters. He obtained his captaincy in 1912.

In 1913 the Americans erected a statue to Gen. Braddock, who commanded a force of British and Colonial troops against the French in the reign of George II., and the regiments who served under him were invited to send representatives to attend the ceremony on October 15. Capt. Constable was chosen, possibly in part because of his fine presence, to represent his Regiment, of which Gen. Braddock had once been Colonel, and the British officers were received with magnificent hospitality. Early in the war he was attached to the 9th (Service) Batt. of his Regiment, and was gazetted Temporary Major in December, 1914. He did excellent service during the training of this Battalion, showing those qualities of thoroughness, reliability and tact for which he had been conspicuous throughout his service. The Battalion went out to France in May, 1915, and were in first line trenches near Bethune on October 12th. The trenches had been very badly damaged by shell-fire, so that there were many dangerous spots, especially to a tall man. He was hit in the head, and was at first conscious, and even sent for his C.S.M. and gave him instructions, but became unconscious before he was removed. He died in hospital on the 16th, without having recovered consciousness, and was buried at Choques, near Bethune.

His Colonel, writing of his irreparable loss, says: "I cannot tell you what your son's death is to us. He had endeared himself to everyone, and we all had the greatest admiration for him. He had done yeoman service since we started to raise this Battalion in August of last year, and he cannot possibly be replaced," and declares that the great praise earned by the Battalion at the Front was very largely due to Major Constable's work and influence. "He was such a fine, good fellow, we were all so fond of him, officers, non-coms., and men. I have never known a more genuine, courteous, kindhearted man, and he was such a thorough gentleman."

2ND LIEUT. GEORGE ERNEST LISTER
CRESSEY, 2ND BATT. THE YORK-SHIRE REGT.

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR VERMELLES,
SEPTEMBER 26TH, 1915. AGED 20.

At the School 1908—14 (School House).

Second Lieut. G. E. L. Cressey was the only son of a well-known O.T., Dr. George Henry Cressey, M.R.C.S.E., L.R.C.P., F.R.Col.Inst. (School House 1868—70), and of Mrs. Cressey, of 1, Nevill Park, Tunbridge Wells, and previously of Oak Manor, Tonbridge. He was at Mr. Bickmore's, Yardley Court, Tonbridge, and in 1908 entered the School as winner of the first New Judde Scholarship of £100 in the first year that these scholarships were offered. It was soon evident that he was a boy of great vigour and exceptional promise, and he played a great part in the life of the School as he grew up. He was in the XV. 1913—14 and captained the side in the Easter Term of 1914, W. F. Gipps having left at Christmas. He was in the School IV. in 1913 and 1914 and Captain of the B.C. in 1914. In the O.T.C. he was promoted to be Sergeant in January, 1912, Colour-Sergeant in September, 1912, and Cadet Officer September, 1913. He became a School Præpostor in September, 1912, and was Captain of the School for his last year. As Captain of the School he made a remarkably able speech at the Old Tonbridgian Dinner in London, in which, besides reviewing the events of the year, he spoke with great power and feeling of the duty of Old Tonbridgians towards the School Mission at Holy Cross, St. Pancras.

In 1911 he won the Upper Sixth Form Prize and was awarded the Gold Pen for Classics and the Greek Prose Prize. In 1912 his illness and operation kept him out of the examination. In July, 1913, he was awarded the first of the Judde Leaving Exhibitions of £75 for Classics, and the Gold Pen once more, and also won the Upper Sixth Form Prize and the Headmaster's Divinity Prize.

In the autumn of 1913 he won the First Open Scholarship at Christ's College, Cambridge, and having obtained permission from the College authorities to read Science instead of Classics at the University, with a view to following in his father's steps and entering the medical profession, he made a most intelligent and promising start with his new work during the remaining two terms of his School life.

On the outbreak of war he applied to the War Office for a commission in an infantry battalion; but, as there was some delay, he accepted a commission in the Kent Cyclists Battalion (T.F.), though much better qualified for a commission in the infantry or the R.A. He remained with the Kent Cyclists till January, 1915, and the officers of the Battalion testify to his great popularity and value. "He was," says the Adjutant, "a most efficient officer and the life and soul of the mess."

In January he decided to adopt the Army as his profession, was nominated for Sandhurst by the Headmaster, and, having obtained permission to relinquish his commission in the Kent Cyclists Battalion, went to Sandhurst to go through the special war emergency course. At Sandhurst he was appointed Senior Under Officer within a few weeks of joining, a very remarkable evidence of the prompt recognition of his worth.

On May 13th he left Sandhurst, having been gazetted to the Yorkshire Regiment, and joined a Battalion at Hartlepool for training. His Company Commander there, writing to Lieut. Cressey's mother before he went out, said: "Your son is, I consider, one of the most exceptional young officers—in fact, the most exceptional young officer I have ever met. He had imbibed at Sandhurst in four months a great deal more than I did there in eighteen months; I mean of course in knowledge of military matters. He has a most exceptional capability for dealing with men and exceptional keenness and great application, and besides is about the cheeriest, best youth to live with that I know. No boy of his age that I have ever met has had half the idea of running and ruling men that he has. He is the straightest, finest young soldier I have ever had the luck to meet. I hope you have no thought of any career but a military one for him, as he is absolutely born to it, though I know he is sacrificing a lot; but he will go right up to the top as a soldier." After two months' training he was sent to Belgium on special entrenching work, and his Company Commander at Hartlepool testified to his qualifications for the task. "He is," he wrote, "a particularly good hand at all entrenching and wire work, and I think they could not have got a better man." He only joined his own Regiment at the end of August, about four weeks before his death. On September 25th the Brigade were in reserve. The attack started at 6 a.m., and the Reserve followed at 10 a.m. over open ground under heavy artillery fire, and then started an attack on some unbroken trenches, but were held up by Maxim fire. Lieut. Cressey was killed instantaneously at about 3 a.m. on the 26th, shot through the head, whilst holding a captured trench. He was buried near the spot where he fell, east of Vermelles. "He had been with us but a short time," writes his Colonel, "but we all recognised that we had a real good officer in him, to be relied on in an emergency, and from that point of view we deplore his loss, but also we all liked him and are—those left of us—very deeply grieved at his loss.” “The opinion we all had of him,” says his Major, “was that he was one of the best and most promising officers we had seen.”

CAPT. BERTRAM VERNON NELSON
FALLE, 6TH BATT. ROYAL IRISH FUSILIERS.

KILLED IN ACTION AT SUVLA BAY, GALLI-
POLI PENINSULA, AUGUST 16TH, 1915.
AGED 35.

At the School 1895—97 (Manor House).

Capt. B. V. N. Falle was the only son of Samuel Vernon Falle, of 31, Stanhope Gardens, South Kensington. In 1904 he was in Brazil, representing Messrs. Johnston Brothers, bankers and merchants of London and Brazil, but was invalided owing to the climate, and in 1906 he joined the firm of Messrs. Pierce, Leslie & Co., also bankers and merchants of London and the Malabar Coast, and on arrival in India he obtained a commission as Lieutenant in the Malaboree Rifles, a Volunteer Corps, and on the occasion of Lord Kitchener's inspection of the District, commanded the Guard of Honour at his station. Owing to repeated attacks of malaria he left India, where he had made many friends, and settled in Petrograd as a merchant and accountant. Here he had won a good position, and had excellent prospects.

The following appeared in the Morning Post on September 11th, from the Special Correspondent at Petrograd:—

“The British community at Petrograd attended a Memorial Service at the English Church to-day for Captain Vernon Falle, of the Royal Irish Fusiliers, who was killed in the fighting at the Dardanelles. Captain Falle was among the first of the regular stream of volunteers for the British Army which commenced to leave Russia soon after the war broke out, and which has continued ever since. Having formerly been in the Army, he soon rose to the rank of captain, and is the first officer from the British colony in Russia who has met death in the common cause.”

He came over in November, 1914, in charge of a contingent of 50 recruits from Petrograd, and soon obtained a commission in the 9th Batt. of The Queen's Royal West Surrey Regt., and in May, 1915, was promoted to Captain, his Colonel recommending him for a Staff appointment; but he was so anxious to go on active service that he applied to be sent to the Dardanelles, and on July 12th he was transferred to the 6th Batt. Royal Irish Fusiliers, and sailed with them next day. He had married a Russian lady only two months previously. Little is known as to the manner of his death, which occurred in the fighting at Suvla Bay on August 16th.

In his last letter home, a cheery letter written the day before his death, he said that owing to force of circumstances he had been placed second in command, and they were to advance that evening. Officers of the regiment testify to his merits as an officer, whilst the officer in whose Company he was in The Queen's before his promotion says of him: "He was the one on whom I most relied in any difficulty, both on account of his military capacity and for the high standard of duty and honour which he set as an example to the younger officers. Our friendship was short, but I much hoped to renew it, for the friendship of a man like that is worth much."

MAJOR BERNARD EDWARD FURLEY,
THE BUFFS (EAST KENT REGT.)

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR LOOS, OCTOBER
13TH, 1915. AGED 30.

At the School 1899—1901 (Park Side).

Major B. E. Furley was the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Furley, of Combe House, Barton Fields, Canterbury. On leaving school he spent some time in Germany, and then went to Sandhurst, being gazetted to the 1st Battalion of the Buffs in 1905. He obtained his full Lieutenancy in 1908, and his Captaincy in July, 1914. In October, 1914, he was appointed Temporary Major for service with the 6th Battalion. He had qualified as a first-class interpreter in German, and it is evident that he was an exceedingly able and keen officer. It was even said of him by one of his brother officers, writing of the irreparable loss they had sustained, that he was the most capable officer in the battalion. He was killed in an attack on some German trenches near the Hohenzollern Redoubt. The German trenches that were to be taken ran at an angle down towards our trenches, with the redoubt some little distance away on our right front, and there was a space of some three hundred yards absolutely without cover, raked by machine guns from right and left, that had somehow not been destroyed by our preparatory artillery fire. This space the battalion had to cross, and their losses were terrible in officers and men. Major Furley fell "riddled with bullets." He was buried in the cemetery at Vermelles. An universal favourite, loved by his men and by everyone who knew him, he was a man who "never said an unkind thing of anyone," as a brother officer has said. "I cannot tell you how brave he was," wrote his Colonel. "Would to God I could replace him, but I never shall."

LIEUT. ATHELSTAN KEY DURANCÉ
GEORGE, 1ST BATT. DORSET REGI-MENT.

DIED SEPTEMBER 14TH, 1914, FROM WOUNDS RECEIVED IN ACTION NEAR GIVENCHY. AGED 27.

At the School 1900—5 (Ferox Hall).

Lieut. A. K. D. George was the younger son of Arthur Durancé George, of Aldersholt, Clarendon Road, Bournemouth. He entered the School in 1900 at the age of 12½, and in 1905 represented the School at Aldershot in fencing and with the sabre. He also won the Headmaster's Drawing Prize.

On leaving School he went to Caius College, Cambridge, where he rowed in the College Eight and was prominent in other branches of College life. He had gone to Cambridge with the intention of studying medicine; but, finding the work involved uncongenial as time went on, he decided to enter the Army, and with that intention left the University without taking a degree, to work for the Army Examination. He was gazetted on February 1st, 1907, as 2nd Lieut. in the 4th (Extra Reserve) Batt. King's Liverpool Regt., and his Colonel later described him as the best subaltern he had ever had. In June, 1909, he was gazetted to the 2nd Batt. of the Dorset Regt., then quartered in India, and was promoted to full Lieutenant a year later. Whilst in India he served as A.D.C. to Sir Maurice Hammick, Governor of Madras, and afterwards as A.D.C. to Lord Sydenham. His irrepressible good humour, tact, and power of organisation, together with his versatile abilities, made him exceedingly useful and popular in such a capacity. He was, moreover, a good shot, an accomplished swordsman, and very useful with the gloves. On his return from India he was transferred to the 1st Battalion, quartered at Belfast, and during his home service he gained a certificate in Aviation and passed through a course of Signalling with distinction.

On August 14th, 1914, he left for the front with his regiment, which suffered greatly during the battles of Mons and Le Cateau, and he was fatally wounded near Givenchy in the battle of the Marne. A brother officer, after writing of his splendid coolness in the firing line, tells how he was found wounded and unconscious after an attack and died five days later without recovering consciousness, adding, "His loss is deeply deplored, as he was immensely popular." He was buried in the cemetery at Coulommiers. The Adjutant wrote: "I knew Lieut. George well and am only too conscious of what a loss he is to the Battalion. He was an exceptionally good officer, one of those whose influence did much towards bringing the Dorsets to the standard they have reached during the war." His Colonel, now a Brigadier-General, in writing to Lieut. George's father in March, 1915, said:—

"I am glad that you have written to me as I have often wished to tell his friends and relatives how deeply every officer and man of the Dorsets grieved with you at the loss of your dear son.

"During the period which followed our fights on the Marne there was, however, little time to write or even to think. Then came the rush northwards and the great fight of the Battalion at Givenchy, when we lost three-quarters of our men and all but four of our original officers, and then I had to spend ten weeks in England, recovering from wounds.

"I first met your son about last May, when he returned to Belfast after going through a course of flying, and I think that a month later he returned to England to begin a course of signalling, from which he returned just before mobilisation, so that I did not get to know him well till the beginning of the war.

"During those first six weeks he was—I think there is only one word to describe him—magnificent. Always cheerful; always caring for others; watching over his men no matter how weary; never sparing himself. To my mind he was the ideal of a British officer—gallant and brave, of course, but in addition, tireless in helping others who did not possess his powers of mind and body.

"I fear that this is but a poor sketch to give you of one who earned our love and esteem to so great a degree. I know his memory will live long in the Dorsets."

SERGEANT GEOFFREY GARNETT
HORSFALL, 10TH AUSTRALIAN LIGHT HORSE.

KILLED IN ACTION IN GALLIPOLI, AUGUST
29TH, 1915. AGED 30.

At the School 1896—1901 (Jude House).

Sergt. G. G. Horsfall was the elder son of Alfred Horsfall and Mrs. Horsfall, of Clitheroe, Lancashire. On leaving School he went out to Singapore, where he was in an export and import office for a time, and then was with Linggi Plantations, Ltd., at Seremban, Malay States, until 1910, when he married, and became partner in a firm of brokers at Singapore. He was a devoted husband and father, and leaves a widow and two children. He came home in 1913, and then went out to Australia. When war broke out he applied for a commission in the 10th Light Horse; but, as there was some delay, he joined as a trooper and went with the Regiment to Egypt in March. He had a severe attack of pneumonia in Egypt, and his C.O. advised that he should stay behind, but he refused, saying that he was "out for the V.C.," and in his last letter home said that if he fell it must be remembered that it was in a good and just cause and that he wanted to fight. When the Regiment went to the Gallipoli Peninsula early in August, they left their horses behind in Egypt and went as infantry. They were continuously in action from August 6th to 10th. The only information so far available as to the circumstances under which he met his death has been obtained from his officer, Lieut. Throssell, V.C., of the 10th L.H., who is in hospital in England. It is evident that Sergt. Horsfall displayed that reckless bravery which has been so conspicuous in this war, and not least on the part of our colonial troops. The following account of what Lieut. Throssell told his visitor was sent to Sergt. Horsfall's mother, and is taken from the local paper:—

'On the morning of Sunday, August 29th, they had orders to take a trench and hold it. They had a hard task, and in the fight the 10th Light Horse won a glorious name. Only twenty-five men were left out of eight hundred. They had been fighting for a few hours when Sergt. Horsfall fell. He was shot through the forehead and rolled back near Lieut. Throssell, and died instantaneously. He was standing firing at the time, and could not have had a more glorious end.' Lieut. Throssell said that Sergt. Horsfall was one of the bravest men he had ever met. He was simply amazed at the reckless bravery he displayed.

CAPT. WILLIAM MONTAGU
HUGHES-HUGHES, 9TH BATT.
WELSH REGT.

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR GIVENCHY,
SEPTEMBER 25TH, 1915. AGED 30.

At the School 1898—1903 (Ferox Hall).

William Montagu Hughes-Hughes

was the son of Montagu Edward Hughes-Hughes, J.P., of Leez Priory, Hartford End, Chelmsford, and was his father's only son till a younger brother was born in July last. His father is an O.T. (1865—70 Judde House), and two of his uncles were also O.T's., and one of them, Walter Oldham Hughes-Hughes, the original compiler of the School Register, returned to the School as a Master 1880—8 and again in 1891. Captain Hughes-Hughes headed the list of Foundation Scholars elected in 1898, and became a School Præpostor in 1902, winning the Smythe Exhibition in 1903 and also a Classical Exhibition at Hertford College, Oxford. At the University he obtained a 2nd Class in Classical Moderations in 1905 and a 1st Class in Jurisprudence in 1907, and took his B.A. in 1907 and his M.A. in 1910. He won a £50 prize in the Bar Examinations, and being called to the Bar (Inner Temple) in 1909, and practising mainly at Chelmsford Sessions, was making rapid strides in his profession. Having been a member of the Inns of Court O. T. C. since 1907, he applied for a commission soon after the outbreak of war and was gazetted September 12th, 1914, 2nd Lieut. in the 9th Batt. of the Welsh Regiment, and promoted to his Captaincy on November 9th. He went out to France with his regiment in July and was killed in an attack on the German lines immediately north of Givenchy in the great fighting on September 25th, in which the battalion suffered very severely. The attack in their part of the line, led with the utmost gallantry by the 9th Welsh and the 9th Fusiliers, is said to have achieved its purpose by preventing German reinforcements from being sent elsewhere. His Colonel, writing to Capt. Hughes-Hughes' father, said :—

“I am most grieved to tell you that your son has been killed whilst most gallantly leading his company in an assault on a desperately strong position. He was shot through the heart before he had gone 50 yards and killed instantaneously. We were able to recover his body at night, and he is buried at Festubert. Your son was a splendid, keen, hardworking capable officer, and was very largely responsible for the high state of efficiency which the Battalion attained, and he is a very great loss to us. He was always the greatest help to me, and I can't tell you how I shall miss him.”

2ND LIEUT. MARCUS ADDISON KOCH,
2ND BATT. THE KING'S SHROPSHIRE
LIGHT INFANTRY.

KILLED IN ACTION IN FRANCE SEPTEMBER 22ND, 1915. AGED 21.

At the School 1907—11. Ferox Hall.

Marcus Addison Koch was the only son of Marcus Koch. After leaving the School he went for a year to a School at Vevey in Switzerland. He then entered the office of Messrs. Howse, Mead & Co., of St. Paul's Churchyard, but was just leaving them for a post in the National Provincial Bank of England when war was declared. He joined the Artists Rifles before the war, and went out with them to France in October, 1914. He obtained his commission on June 11th, 1915, whilst in France, being gazetted as a Temporary 2nd Lieut. in the 2nd Batt. of the Shropshire Light Infantry. He went out again in September, and in a letter written on the day of his death told how his battalion had just relieved the French in a part of the line where no British troops had been before. Letters from brother officers and from his soldier servant all bear eloquent testimony to his sterling qualities as an officer and as a comrade, his quiet unassuming bearing and his popularity with officers and men alike. "His men," says his Company Commander, "would have followed him through fire and water. He always did his work willingly and well, no matter how dangerous or unpleasant it might be. It is only a few days since I strongly recommended him for a regular commission."

Whilst observing an enemy aeroplane he inadvertently raised his head above the parapet of the trench and was shot by a sniper and died without recovering consciousness. He was buried near where he fell, in an orchard on high ground overlooking beautiful country, at a village named Cappy, the men of his company subscribing for a chain and a wreath for the grave.

"He was," says one who served with him in the Artists Rifles, "one of the most conscientious and thorough men I ever met. Nothing was too much trouble for him if duty demanded it. That was the keynote of his character, devotion to duty."

COLONEL 2ND COMMANDANT FRANK
WILLIAM LUARD, R.M.L.I.

KILLED IN ACTION IN GALLIPOLI, JULY
14TH, 1915. AGED 50.

At the School 1875—76 (Day Boy).

Colonel F. W. Luard was the fourth son of the Rev. Bixby Garnham Luard, Rector of Birch, Essex, who has had five sons in the Army and Navy, and one daughter in the Army Nursing Service; and nephew of the late Admiral Sir William Luard, K.C.B. His great-grandfather was General Sir Nicholas Trant, K.T.S., who served in the Peninsular War. He married in 1896 Eloine, daughter of the late Walter Perkins, of Portswood, Southampton, and leaves two daughters. He was only at Tonbridge as a very young boy, and then went to Forest School, Walthamstow. Joining the Royal Marines in 1884, he was adjutant of the Portsmouth Division from 1896 to 1901. He became Lieut.-Colonel in 1910, and on June 24th last was promoted Colonel 2nd Commandant. He was a qualified interpreter in French. Soon after the outbreak of the war he was appointed to the command of the Portsmouth Battalion of the Royal Marine Brigade. In October Colonel Luard went to Dunkirk; he was subsequently sent with his battalion to Lille, and afterwards joined the expedition to Antwerp. During the retirement the battalion fought a sharp rearguard action in pitch darkness, and, after a march of forty miles without food or water, were able to reach Ostend by train. In April he landed at the Dardanelles with the Royal Naval Division. He was wounded on May 3, and had not long returned to the front from Alexandria when he was killed on July 14th.

On July 13th the Portsmouth Battalion was ordered to take some enemy trenches. The charge was over 400 yards of open ground under a heavy shrapnel, Maxim, and rifle fire. They gained and held the trench, and it was while gaining first-hand information of the enemy's position on the 14th that Colonel Luard was hit in the chest. He lived a few hours, and insisted on remaining where he fell, though his men wanted to take him down to be attended to by the doctor. He said that "he would take his chance of pulling through the same as the men" as he feared the terrible risk of further loss of life, if they attempted it.

He died as they were taking him down in the evening under cover of darkness, and was buried the next day, with the remnants of his Battalion present. They had suffered very severely in the action, all the officers but one being killed or wounded. The following is an extract from the letter of his Brigadier-General to Mrs. Luard:—

"He was leading his men in the attack; his gallantry was most remarkable—as you would expect and have wished of him—but he was such a gentleman, as well as such an officer, that his Battalion are completely broken by it. They all loved him, as he never failed to take trouble after trouble to care for them. He had extricated them from peril after peril, and the loss is a grave one indeed to the country."

The chaplain wrote:

"The Colonel knew no fear. He loved his officers and men, and they loved and respected him. Keenly they feel his loss. . . . We have lost a gallant officer who was also a Christian gentleman, whose example will never fade from the memories of all who knew him."

CAPT. CHARLES WILLIAM STANLEY
PAINE, ROYAL MARINE LIGHT
INFANTRY.

KILLED IN ACTION IN THE GALLIPOLI
PENINSULA, JUNE 17th, 1915. AGED

At the School 1891—5 (School House).

Captain C. W. S. Paine, R.M.L.I., of Barnfield, Medstead, Hants, was the eldest son of William Henry Paine, of Derwent House, Canterbury. After leaving School he qualified as an electrical engineer and then went out to the Colonies, being for a time in Queensland. He went to South Africa and took part with the Border Police in putting down the native rising in Bechuanaland. When the South African war broke out he was in England. He volunteered and went out with the Electrical Engineers, serving later with Steinecker's Horse and receiving the Queen's medal with four clasps. At the end of the war he returned to England and was for some time once more at the electrical power station in the Isle of Thanet. In May, 1905, he returned to South Africa and cleared and farmed a large tract of land in Mashonaland. Towards the end of 1909 he returned to England and was farming in Hampshire at the outbreak of the war. The day after war was declared he left home to serve with the Legion of Frontiersmen, but after three months of duty at Southampton, finding that the Legion had little chance of being sent to the front, he applied for a commission and was gazetted 2nd Lieut. R.N.D. November 19th, 1914. He was promoted to be Lieut. and gazetted Lieut. R.M., attached R.N.D., November 23rd, and Capt. R.M. on December 8th, 1914. He went out to the Dardanelles in May with the Benbow Battalion of the R.N.D., and was in action almost immediately. On the disbanding of the Benbow Battalion he was transferred to the Hood Battalion. On June 17th he was instantaneously killed in action, shot by a sniper whilst trying to get help to a wounded man, and Mrs. Paine and her children may be sure of universal sympathy in their bereavement. An officer of the Battalion, in sending news of his death, wrote: "You may be sure that he died, as he lived, as an English gentleman," whilst his orderly testifies to his great gallantry and his popularity as an officer. "He was," writes one who knew him well, "a thorough sportsman, a man of unflinching courage and cheerfulness, equally ready to share his purse or his last meal, not only with friends, but with anyone who seemed in need of either. No one has ever more cheerfully and unassumingly lived the golden rule than he, as scores of men down on their luck, and many a tired animal too, could testify."

He had a distinct literary and poetical bent and published, as a rule anonymously, a good many things, mostly short stories, both in English and in Rhodesian magazines. Two of his short poems, of which that entitled "The Dead" was obviously written during or after the South African war, and appeared in the Westminster Gazette lately, will be found on another page of this number.

SECOND LIEUT. CEDRIC WILLIAM PEPPER, 3RD BATT. SOMERSET LIGHT INFANTRY (S.R.).

DIED AS THE RESULT OF A PISTOL ACCIDENT AT OXFORD, OCTOBER 21ST, 1915. AGED 20.

At the School 1909—11 (School House).

Second Lieut. C. W. Pepper was the second son of William Frederick Pepper, of Redlynch Park, Bruton, and formerly of Shipton Court, Oxfordshire, of which county he was High Sheriff.

After leaving the School in 1911, he went to Worcester College, Oxford, and whilst at the University he was a follower of the Drag Hounds and rode in the College "grinds," as the point-to-point steeplechases are called at Oxford. His elder brother, who was formerly at Christ Church, holds a commission in the Q. O. Oxfordshire Hussars, and has been at the front for some time.

On the outbreak of war he enlisted in the 2nd Batt. King's Royal Rifle Corps, and served with them as a rifleman for nine months in France, escaping with nothing more serious than a slight wound from shrapnel in July. This, however, resulted in his being invalided home, as septic trouble ensued. He had quite recovered, and in October he obtained a commission in the Special Reserve, being gazetted to the 3rd Batt. Somerset Light Infantry, and was sent to Oxford to go through a course of training, and billeted in his old College. Whilst he was with the Rifle Corps he often expressed in his letters his admiration and liking for the men, and declared he "would not have missed his time in the ranks for worlds." Soon after he obtained his commission he met one of his old comrades, who saluted, and when Lieut. Pepper held out his hand, said, "I am glad to see you in your right place at last, sir."

He died in Worcester College on October 21st, as the result of a pistol accident—a sad end for one who had for so long faced and escaped death in the field.

CAPT. JAMES GABRIEL LANCASTER RANKING, INDIAN ARMY, INDIAN POLITICAL SERVICE.

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR BUSHIRE, JULY
12TH, 1915. AGED 32.

At the School 1897—98 (Day Boy).

Capt. J. G. L. Ranking was the third son of Lieut.-Col. George Speirs Alexander Ranking, M.D., I.M.S. (retired), now O.C. 3rd Southern General Hospital R.A.M.C. (T.F.) at Oxford, and of Mrs. Ranking, of 56, Upper Grosvenor Road, Tunbridge Wells. He was only a short time here, and was afterwards at Aldenham, and then with Mr. J. Le Fleming, Eton House, Tonbridge. He entered the R.A.M.C., Sandhurst, in 1902, and passed out first, obtaining the Anson Memorial Sword of Honour, the King's Gold Medal for general proficiency, and the prize for Military Engineering. In April, 1903, he was appointed to the East Lancashire Regiment, and after serving with that regiment in India was in 1904 gazetted to the 46th Punjab Infantry. In three years he qualified in Hindustani, Persian, and Pushtū, and in 1907 was selected for service under the Foreign Office, and was sent to Ahwaz, in Arabistan, where he remained as British Consul till May, 1911. Whilst there he had to negotiate an agreement between the Anglo-Persian Oil Company and the Bakhtiari Khans for the acquisition of land by the company, and Sir G. Barclay, H.B.M. Minister at Teheran, in August, 1911, wrote to say that "the Secretary of State concurred in his view that great credit was due to Lieut. Ranking for the manner in which he had conducted these difficult and protracted negotiations, and was to convey to him an expression of Sir E. Grey's warm approval of his proceedings." Lieut. Ranking was then transferred to India for a special course, and was shortly after appointed permanently to the Political Department of the Government of India and gazetted to the N.W. Frontier Province, where he served till he was once more posted to Southern Persia in 1913. He had been gazetted Captain in January, 1912. At the time of his death he was Assistant to the Resident, Persian Gulf, at Bushire. He must have seen much of another O.T., H. G. Chick (1901 P.H.), who has been at Bushire since 1909 as British Vice-Consul, receiving the C.I.E. in the King's Birthday Honours this year for his services as commercial adviser to the Resident in the Persian Gulf. Capt. Ranking was mentioned in despatches in the early part of this year, though this has not appeared in English papers.

The serious condition of affairs in Persia was fully pointed out by Colonel Yates in the House on September 28th, and was acknowledged by the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. Persia, as he pointed out, though a neutral country, is occupied and terrorised by armed bands under German officers. He spoke of the open intrigues of Germany and Germans amongst the various tribes since the beginning of the war and of the large sums spent by them in inducing these tribes to damage British interests throughout S. Persia, even to the extent of inciting them to murder British officers and those employed by British companies in Persia. Captain Ranking, writing in May last, declared that "the Germans had laid a plot to murder every English man, woman, and child through the agency of various tribes throughout Persia," adding, "It is astonishing that any civilized nation should so far lose its national conscience as to stoop to such acts." The result of these plots was that at Bushire and at other places in S. Persia the British officials, residents, and troops have been in constant danger. His letters tell of repeated attempts at attack and continual sniping. "What a Gilbertian situation," he wrote on June 20th, "a horde of wild men from the hills, led by a few Germans, armed by them with the latest arms and ammunition, preparing to attack a British colony of twenty or thirty people, and all this in a neutral country, the tribesmen being the rebellious subjects of the neutral Power! And with all this, when we can get off, we go round to each other's houses to play tennis, etc." On July 6th he told how very serious their position had become, and mentioned that the Government had now made them officially part of I.E.F. "D," the Mesopotamian Field Force. A strong night attack was then daily expected. On July 12th information was received from a not very reliable source with regard to a concerted attack to be made by native tribes that night. It was decided to verify it before calling out the reserve of the regiment, which had been very hard worked lately, and Major Oliphant, 96th Berar Infantry, and Capt. Ranking set out in the afternoon with six sowars and twenty-six sepoy to reconnoitre. Capt. Ranking, who was leading with a few men, came suddenly upon a strong body of Tangistanis. Before they could retire the horse one of the sowars was riding was shot dead, and Capt. Ranking pulled up to extricate and save the sowar. This he did, but it cost him his life. He was hit and fell. Major Oliphant rode up and tried in vain to rescue him, and was himself killed too. The survivors retired and occupied some sangars (circular loose stone walls round vines or fig-trees), and held the enemy till the regimental reserves arrived, and, with the assistance of two captured Turkish field guns that had been sent to Bushire and of the 4-inch guns of H.M.S. Lawrence, firing at long range, the enemy was repulsed and decamped. The bodies of the two officers were recovered at dawn, and evidence obtained later showed that the enemy's plan for a combined attack, the result of which might have been very serious, had been frustrated by the discovery of the advance party.

A letter conveying the sympathy of the Viceroy to Lieut.-Col. Ranking ends as follows: "His Excellency desires me to say that the Political Department, of which he is the head, have lost in your son a most keen and promising officer and one who had already done much good work for the Empire in remote and isolated parts of Persia."

LT.-COLONEL WILLIAM TANKER-VILLE MONYPENNY REEVE,
C.M.G., 2ND BATT. LEINSTER REGT.

DIED SEPTEMBER 28TH, 1915, FROM ILL-NESS CONTRACTED WHILST SERVING IN THE EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN.
AGED 49.

At the School 1880—84 (Day Boy).

Lt.-Col. W. T. M. Reeve, who was the third and last surviving son of the late Captain John Milward Reeve, R.N., a Crimean Veteran, on leaving Sandhurst in 1887 joined the 2nd Batt. of the Prince of Wales's Leinster Regiment (Royal Canadians), and obtained his Captaincy in 1894—was Adjutant for four years, 1895—99. In 1900 he was employed with the Gold Coast Constabulary in General Willcocks's Expeditionary Force against the Ashantis, and was mentioned in despatches and awarded the medal. At the conclusion of the operations he remained on the West Coast, serving with the Constabulary and with the West African Frontier Force, until 1905, and was largely responsible for the conversion of the Constabulary into the Gold Coast Regiment of which he was second in command. He returned to West Africa in February, 1909, at the special invitation of the Colonial Office, to take command of the regiment, and served with the Frontier Force until 1911.

He became Colonel of his own regiment, the 2nd Leinsters, in 1912, and shortly after the outbreak of the present war took the battalion to France in time to come in for a full share of the severe fighting round Armentieres in October and November, 1914. He received a severe wound on November 19th which occasioned the loss of his left forearm. He was mentioned in despatches and his services were further rewarded with a C.M.G. on June 22nd, 1915. Notwithstanding his disablement, he returned to the front on June 1st and remained there for some weeks; but the loss of his arm was considered too great a handicap for trench warfare and he was, in consequence, temporarily attached to the newly-formed 1st Garrison Batt. Essex Regiment as Commanding Officer. He took this battalion out for service on the lines of communication in the Dardanelles, and he contracted his fatal illness in Lemnos almost immediately after their arrival. He died in a Military Hospital in London and was buried in Brompton Cemetery.

Always a keen soldier, he had been adjutant of his old regiment, having previously acted in that capacity for a long period during the illness of his predecessor, and had also been Garrison Adjutant at Bermuda. His foreign service included such widely distant stations as Calcutta, Halifax (Nova Scotia), Mauritius, Malta, Bermuda, South and West Africa, while besides he had had several years' experience of soldiering in Ireland and England.

All the time he was invalided he was quietly eager to get back to his men. "They asked me if I had tied my tie myself," he told a relative on coming away from a Medical Board. "I said 'yes.' It was true," he added with an almost apologetic smile, "though my wife did have to straighten it out a little." Such was the spirit of the man.

PTE. PHILIP FERGUS ROGERS, 5TH
BATT. CAMERON HIGHLANDERS.
KILLED IN ACTION NEAR LOOS, SEP-
TEMBER 25TH, 1915. AGED 27.

At the School 1903—5 (School House).

Pte. P. F. Rogers was the sixth and youngest son of John Crosbie Rogers, of South Park, Cove, Dumbartonshire, and was on the Glasgow Stock Exchange. He enlisted in the 5th Batt. Q. O. Cameron Highlanders at the beginning of the war, and was in the machine gun section of the battalion. The following extracts are taken from letters written by a comrade and friend, and convey some idea of the experiences of his Division and of the circumstances under which he gave his life:—

"On the morning of Saturday, the 25th September, at 3 a.m., the boys were busy preparing their breakfast. What a feast we had! It was a never-to-be-forgotten meal. At 6.20 a.m. the word 'Charge' was passed along. What a sight! The Seaforths on our right, with the Gordons as supports, the K.O.S.B.'s on our left with the H.L.I. as supports. But the Camerons have the Black Watch for supports, and some combination too! We fought all day, and at midnight the Camerons retired to our original firing line, while fresh troops held the position gained. All was fairly quiet on Sunday, but on Monday at exactly 3 p.m. the order came to go over the parapet again, and off we went at once. The rain of lead was awful; we went into action about 1100 strong, and the roll call after the two days' battle was 260. It is terrible. The other Highland regiments suffered almost as badly.

"When we arrived at our old billet a rare hot breakfast was ready for us, and we received an issue of rum which was most welcome. As we were proceeding to the motor transport wagons which were to take us to our next billet (in a large town), a very thoughtful Staff Officer passed. It was the Prince of Wales, and he was all by himself. He looked extremely nice, but rather tired. However not nearly so tired as we were.

"On 2nd October there followed the surprise of our lives. Just as we were about to move off a General rode up. It was General French.

Taking off his cap he addressed us. Among other things he said: 'You have taken part in the greatest attack since the beginning of the war, and I thank you all for the most gallant manner in which you have performed your great task. This is nothing new for the Camerons, and you only did as I expected you would do. You are the only battalion in the 9th Division I will probably have the opportunity of addressing, so you might convey my appreciation to all your comrades in the other regiments.' It was a great honour, and poor Lochiel was much affected. One of our boys (of D Company) was wounded and crawled into a German dug-out. Shortly afterwards six Huns came in, and he covered them with his rifle. They were very friendly and dressed his wounds. When darkness fell, the six of them brought him over to our lines. Lochiel was greatly pleased at one of his wounded men taking six prisoners!

"You will be sorry to hear that among the killed are poor Fergus Rogers and Jack Mac-Auslan. Fergus was killed outright by concussion, while Jack was shot through both legs above the knee. That was early on Saturday morning the 25th. When the stretcher-bearers went out that night Fergus was found dead in Jack's arms—both dead. What fine men they both were, too! This morning the Brigadier-General addressed the Camerons, and said that General French and those under him had seen many a charge, but nothing so grand as they had witnessed on Saturday 25th and Monday 27th September. 'One would have thought,' he said, 'that you were on parade.'"

LIEUT. ROBERT WILLIAM RYALL,
2ND BATT. 8TH GURKHA RIFLES,
INDIAN ARMY.

DIED OCTOBER 11TH, 1915, OF WOUNDS
RECEIVED IN ACTION NEAR LA
BASSEE, SEPTEMBER 25TH. AGED 23.

At the School 1907—11 (Parkside).

Robert William Ryall was the elder son of Lieut.-Col. Edward Charles Ryall, late 4th Gurkha Rifles, Indian Army, and of Mrs. Ryall, of North Ridge, Tonbridge.

His name appeared in the list of successful candidates in the R.M.A. Woolwich Entrance Examinations in December, 1910; but he did not go to Woolwich. In September, 1911, he went to Sandhurst with a view to joining the Indian Army. He passed out well, and was gazetted to the Indian Army on August 24th, 1912, being attached to the 3rd Batt. King's Royal Rifle Corps for his first year in India. He was then appointed to the 2nd Batt. 8th Gurkha Rifles receiving his promotion to Lieutenant on November 24th, 1914. He joined his battalion in France with reinforcements from India, and after passing a machine-gun course was appointed machine-gun officer to his battalion and also served with the brigade machine guns. He was present at the battle of Neuve Chapelle, being attached temporarily to the 58th Punjab Infantry, and came safely through all the May and June fighting, in which, to use his own words, he "had a thousand and one escapes."

He remained at the Front with the machine guns till the action of September 25th, when he was wounded near La Bassée by a shell which burst beside him whilst he was attacking with his guns between the German trenches and our own. He crawled into the shell hole until aid reached him, and one of his own men carried him back to our lines.

A brother officer, writing to him after he was wounded, said: "Your guns did extremely well, and I congratulate you on your section."

Another, writing of him, said: "He was a splendid soldier, was always looking for new ways of employing his machine guns to better advantage. The men were devoted to him, as I know they realised he would do anything and everything for them."

The Regiment suffered very severely in the great attack of September 25th, losing the commanding officer and many other officers and men. Lieut. Ryall, who was very severely wounded, was taken to the Duchess of Westminster's Hospital at Le Touquet, where, after bearing his sufferings with great fortitude, he died on October 11th, and he is buried in the British Military Cemetery at Etaples. Colonel Ryall, who retired from the Indian Army in 1909, was serving at the time with the 7th Batt. Q. O. Royal West Kent Regt. at the Front, and Mrs. Ryall and he were able to be with their son at the last.

SECOND LIEUT. HENRY BERTRAM STOKOE, 6TH BATT. KING'S OWN YORKSHIRE LIGHT INFANTRY.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED BY THE BURSTING OF A RIFLE GRENADE IN THE TRENCHES NEAR ST. ELOI, OCTOBER 12TH, 1915. AGED 21.

At the School 1908—13 (Park House).
2nd Lieut. H. B. Stokoe was the elder son of Henry Robert Stokoe, of Park House, and a grandson of the late Rev.

T. H. Stokoe, D.D., formerly Headmaster of King's College School and subsequently Rector of Lutterworth, of St. Michael's, Oxford, and finally of Waddington. His mother, who died in 1912, was the eldest surviving daughter of well-known Tonbridge residents of twenty-five to thirty years ago, the late Rev. H. D. Hubbard and Mrs. Hubbard, now of 34, Redlands Road, Reading. Her brothers were prominent in the life and athletics of the School in their day, and are well-known Old Tonbridgians. There is once more a Hubbard at Tonbridge, as the elder son of Mr. G. C. Hubbard, the old Rugby International three-quarters, of the Blackheath F.C., has joined the School this Term. A cousin of the late Mrs. Stokoe's, Capt. T. O'B. Hubbard (Park House, 1897—99), is a Flight-Commander in the R.F.C.

Henry Bertram Stokoe was at first at Mr. Darling's Preparatory School, Clare House, Tonbridge, and afterwards at the Abbey School, Beckenham, before he came to the School in 1908. He became a School Præpostor and Captain of his House, and though, only in the 2nd XI. here, played regularly as a bowler for the 1st XI. of Oriel College, Oxford, during the latter part of the Summer Term of 1914. He had just completed his first year at this his father's old College when war was declared. He represented the University at golf, and contributed materially to Oxford's unexpected victory in the Inter-University match at Rye in March, 1914. He was a well-known member of the Royal St. David's Golf Club, Harlech, where the family have for years spent most of their holidays. Playing after the first day with a handicap of plus 2 in the big open Easter meeting there in 1914, he achieved the unique success of winning every event, including the scratch and handicap aggregates and the four-somes, in which he was partnered by his father.

Soon after war broke out he applied for a commission and was gazetted to the 6th Batt. K.O.Y.L.I., one of the first service battalions. He went to the front with his battalion in May, and was in C Company till September 5th, when he was selected to take command of A Company, which had lost its officers. His Company was holding important and difficult first-line trenches at Hooge throughout the terrific bombardment on both sides that preceded the great attack on September 25th. On the 22nd he wrote: "I wish they would relieve us. The men are about played out. They are shelled all day and work all night. They are simply splendid. They have had an awful time, and have been kept in much longer than usual, but I have not heard one single word of complaint. I have no words high enough for them. I am just proud to be able to work with them and for them. Don't worry about me. I shall pull through somehow." After the strain of what they had been through the battalion were in reserve during the actual attack, but were still subjected to heavy bombardment, and their losses have been very heavy in both officers and men. Early in October they were holding trenches near St. Eloi, and on October 12th 2nd Lieut. Stokoe, who was still commanding the Company, was observing from the parapet the effect of rifle grenades that were being fired at a German working party, when one exploded immediately on being fired. He was struck in the carotid artery and died almost at once.

Capt. G. B. Wilson, of A Company, who had just rejoined after recovering from his wounds, writes: "I was deeply shocked to learn it at H.Q. and by meeting the stretcher party on my way up to the firing line to take over the Company." He was buried in a little cemetery that the Brigade had started at Vierstraat, near St. Eloi.

Letters from officers and men alike testify to his popularity and to the esteem in which he was held as an officer. "He was loved by all the men in the Battalion," says one officer. His old Company Commander in C Company writes: "I formed a very high opinion of his courage and efficiency and recommended him for promotion"; whilst Major Littledale, who joined the Battalion as second in command in August, says:—

"As it happens, I had recently been thrown into contact with him a good deal. We very soon get to know each other out here, and I thought perhaps it might be some little consolation to you to know that he was a real good officer, and the way in which he managed to carry on during the operations preceding the 25th September, when he was for part of the time alone in charge of his Company and never had more than one officer with him during that very trying time, earned my admiration. As it happened, I saw him at work, and it's work in the fire trenches that counts. Please forgive a letter from a stranger, but I counted him one of my friends."

His Colonel, writing on the day of Lieut. Stokoe's death, testifies to the "excellent work" he had done in command of the Company, and says: "I sent forward a recommendation two days ago for him to be promoted Substantive-Lieutenant and Temporary Captain as he had been commanding his Company for just over a month. This should appear in the London Gazette in course of time."

SECOND LIEUT. GEOFFREY LENNOX
WAINWRIGHT, 3RD BATT. ROYAL
SUSSEX REGT. (S.R.). ATTD. 2ND
BATT.

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR VERMELLES, SEP-
TEMBER 25TH, 1915. AGED 21.

At the School 1908—13 (Manor House).

Second Lieut. G. L. Wainwright was the elder son of Dr. Lennox Wainwright and Mrs. Wainwright, of 14, Earls Avenue, Felkestone. He came to Tonbridge from Mr. Bull's Preparatory School at Southborough, and left at Easter, 1913, from the Scientific Sixth. He possessed very considerable artistic and scientific ability, winning the "Design" Prize in the Art School in 1912, and was well known here for his clever caricatures. From Tonbridge he went to Christ's College, Cambridge, intending to work for the Diploma of Architecture and Engineering, and had just completed his first year when war broke out. He enlisted in the 16th (Public Schools) Batt. of the Middlesex Regt., and his commission in the 3rd Batt. Royal Sussex Regt. is dated August 15th, 1914. He joined this Regiment at Dover and eventually went to the front on May 15th, 1915, attached to the 2nd Battalion, and was in the trenches from then till his death, with the exception of a week's leave spent in England. His Captain gave the following account of his death in the great attack near Vermelles on September 25th:—

"In the attack we came under a very heavy fire, and we had to push on and take the first line of German trenches. I saw your son leading his men about half way across the open space which separated us, and then lost sight of him. When eventually we pierced their line we pushed on through their second and support lines and right through about a mile and a half, after taking about 700 prisoners. When we returned the next day I visited the ground where we had such a fight and found your son right close against the wire, hard by the German trenches. He must have been killed instantaneously, as he had several bullets near the heart."

His Colonel, writing to express his own sympathy and that of the Regiment, says:—

"Your boy died a soldier's death, leading his men against the German trenches. We shall miss him much, as he was a most promising officer and a genial companion, who had endeared himself to all. He was buried at Le Rutoire Farm, about one mile west of Vermelles, with five other officers of the Battalion. Their grave had to be dug under shell fire; in fact, one man of the party was killed and one wounded in doing it."

They were buried on the 27th by a Chaplain of the Guards Brigade, as the Regimental Chaplain was similarly occupied in another part of the field. "He was," wrote a brother officer, "one of those highly sensitive men who thoroughly appreciate danger, but was never afraid to face it."

SECOND LIEUT. THOMAS BASIL WOOD,
4TH BATT. LINCOLNSHIRE REGT.
(T.F.).

KILLED IN ACTION NEAR LOOS, OCTOBER
13TH, 1915. AGED 20.

At the School 1910—13 (Judde House).

Second Lieut. T. B. Wood was the younger son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood, of Skirbeck Quarter, Boston, Lines. He was articled to Messrs. Millington, Simpsons and Giles, solicitors, Boston, and obtained a commission in the 2/4th Batt. of the Lincolnshire Regt. in October, 1914, while his elder brother is a Lieutenant in the Royal Naval Reserve. He had only been at the front for a few weeks. The Battalion suffered terribly in the great struggle for the Hohenzollern Redoubt on October 13th; of twenty-five officers present only two, it is said, came through unscathed. "It was an awful sight," says a sergeant of the Battalion. "The charge was tremendous. Our losses were heavy, but we got the Redoubt and held it till relieved." The other subaltern in his company wrote to tell what he knew of Lieut. Wood's death:—

"His pluck," he wrote, "was amazing, and time after time I have had to urge him to take better care of himself. He seemed to have no fear at all. From all accounts of the very few survivors who saw him hit, he died a glorious death, gallant to the last, bravely urging his men on, and taking no heed of the terrible machine gun fire which was mowing men down all around him. His death is a great loss to the British Army, for he was the ideal young British officer and a man that everyone admired and respected. I think you may rest assured that his death was instantaneous, and that his body has been recovered and has received proper burial."

In recognition of their gallantry and devotion to duty in the field His Majesty the King has been graciously pleased to approve of the appointment of the following Officers to be Companions of the Distinguished Service Order:—

Gazette, Aug. 25, 1915:—

CAPT. HUGH GRIFFITHS COKE FOWLER,
2nd Bn., South Wales Borderers.—"For great gallantry on the 18th and 19th June, 1915, during operations on the Gallipoli Peninsula. In a counter-attack on a Turkish trench he led the party which eventually cleared it. This officer himself threw some thirty bombs, some of which were enemy bombs which he picked up and threw back at great personal risk."

(P.H. 1900.)

Gazette, Nov. 4, 1915:—

CAPT. WALTER CARANDINI WILSON,
2nd Batt. the Leicestershire Regt.—
"For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during an attack near Pietre Farm on 25th September, 1915. When giving final directions to his men he was severely wounded in the stomach, but he stuck to his work and went forward, encouraging his men till he could see through the smoke that they were over the German parapet. He was then helped back in an exhausted state. Capt. Wilson's name has several times been brought forward for gallantry and determination."

(P.S. 1903.)

And to confer the Military Cross on—

SECOND LIEUT. THOMAS ROSCOW REID, the King's Royal Rifle Corps, Special Reserve, attached 2nd Batt.—“For conspicuous gallantry on 25th September, 1915, near Hulluch. As Machine-gun Officer he was badly gassed with his section at the commencement of the attack, but, when his battalion was held up by the enemy's wire, he collected his men, took forward a gun to where there was a gap, and by his fire materially helped the Battalion out of a difficult situation. Eventually all his men were killed or wounded, but he got back both his gun and all his casualties. He was himself wounded later in the week.”

(P.S. 1913.)

The following is from the Gazette of India :—

Despatch from Sir John Eccles Nixon, K.C.B., commanding I.E.F. “D.” in Mesopotamia :—“I wish to mention the following, who prominently came to my notice :—

“CAPT. C. A. POGSON, 117th Mahrattas, has done very valuable intelligence work in connection with the Euphrates blockade and showed much enterprise and daring. He has probably undergone more continuous hardship than any other individual in the force.”

(P.H. 1904.)

NOTE.—Mr. Stokoe will be glad to receive similar paragraphs, if obtainable, with regard to other O.T.'s who have gained distinction.

THE RIGHT REV. J. C. ROPER, D.D. (Langhorne's, 1872—77), Bishop of British Columbia, has resigned his See.

THE REV. J. A. W. WADMORE (Sc. and D.B., 1862—69), Prebendary of Wells Cathedral, has been appointed Perpetual Curate of Oakhill, Bath.

C. J. B. MARRIOTT (Judde House, 1895—98), Capt. Camb. Univ. Rugby XV., 1883, and Capt. English XV., 1886, has taken a Commission as Temp. Lieut. A.S.C., at the age of 54. He is not the oldest O.T. who has come forward and taken a Commission, as H. Marzetti (Sc., 1867—73), who is several years his senior, was gazetted last May 2nd Lieut. T.F. Res., and is serving with 10th Batt. London Regt. (Hackney) (T.F.).

LT.-COL. ERIC MURRAY (School House 1900—4) must surely have created a record in Army promotion! He was in the Cadet Corps here, and was in the Cambridge University Corps from 1904 to 1908, but had no other military experience before the war. He has been Assistant Secretary of the British Empire League since 1909, and, having obtained leave for the period of the war, he was on September 28th, 1914, gazetted Temporary 2nd Lieutenant in the 22nd Batt. (Kensington) Royal Fusiliers (City of London Regt.), and promoted almost immediately to Lieutenant. In February he was promoted to be Temporary Captain (February 20th), and transferred as Adjutant to the 39th (or, as it almost immediately became, the 35th) Divisional Ammunition Column, R.F.A. In May he became Temporary Major (May 10th), and was transferred, as second in command, to the 17th Batt. (B.E.L.) King's Royal Rifle Corps. His transference to the 20th Batt. (B.E.L. Pioneers) of the Regiment, and promotion to be Temporary Lieutenant-Colonel and to command the Battalion are dated September 10th. From civilian to Lieutenant - Colonel within twelve months! He is just 30 years old.

WE are privileged to print the following verses, written by the late Captain C. W. S. Paine, R.M.L.I. (Sc. 1891—5), who was killed in action in Gallipoli, July 17th, 1915. "The Dead," certainly, was written after the South African war.

THE DEAD.

THE rolling dust clouds of our cavalry,
Mark the pursuit across the stricken plain;
Amid the hollows, shadow-hidden, lie
The silent outlines of the newly slain;
Low sinks the sun on slaughter grim and red.
O Christ above, have pity on our dead!

Men in their prime and men of gentle birth,
Veterans of years and those who held command,
Dead steed and débris pile the reeking earth,
Comrade and foeman, shattered hilt in hand.
Low swoop the vultures waiting to be fed:
O Christ above, have pity on our dead!

The pall of night above them and around,
And silver glimpses of the moonlight beams;
And underfoot the blood-stained sodden ground,
O'erhead the Cross, with jewel-like lustre gleams.
Thus, softly while the night winds fan their bed,
O Christ above, have pity on our dead!

The voice of women wailing to the stars,
The voice of Rachel weeping for her slain.
Ye ghostly hands that shake the window bars!
Ye voices of the night-time and the rain!
Hark to the night hawk wheeling overhead.
O Christ above, have pity on our dead!

NATURE HYMN.

O HANDMAID of our God, most beautiful,
So near to God, and more than half divine,
So near to God, that men beholding thee
Fill with instinctive worship, seeing God
Reflected in thine Image, veiled and robbed
Of all the fiercer glory, so their eyes
May rest on it and be undazzled.

Old and worn

Art thou, O beautiful,—In flight old Time
Hath left his varied impress on thy face—
Yet born again, Oh! mystic Paradox!
With each succeeding springtime. Thus with thee
Stare the young fawns with wonder-seeing eyes,
Behold their kin, and know them unafraid.
O ever wondrous Nature, thus with thee
Burst forth the buds to fragrance, thus with thee
Clamours the callow brood within the nest
Watching the hen's return.

And great art thou, !
 Who saw'st the void whipt into shape of world,
 And handed to thee countless years ago,
 O guardian Mother, well hast thou thy charge
 Tended and nourished since that first great dawn
 Of the grey world, slow warming into life,
 Stocked with grim beasts, and reptiles, monstrous huge,
 Roaming grim forest wilds, and wallowing
 In shallows, by the shores of oceans vast,
 Until these passed to whence they came, and left
 Fresh types in place, fresh forms of beauty, forms
 More fitting for their setting. These, too, passed,
 And type succeeded type until to-day.
 And thou, O God's own handmaid, faithful,
 true,
 Did'st watch o'er all, and care for, did'st defend
 The meanest weakling, give the strong their meat,
 Did'st shower the spring rain, bring the feeding
 grass,
 Guide on the rivers, hew down mighty hills,
 Ever to God's command.
 O desert land, bleak, waterless, alone,
 Because of thy great mystic solitude
 Lift up thy voice that whispers like a ghost
 Under thy starlit sky and praise thy God.
 O forest land, that teeming o'er with life
 Carols, and calls and crackles, many notes
 Of beast and bird and insect's monotone ;
 Because of thy great beauty, hid within
 Coyly, among thy secret hiding spots,
 Lift up thy voice from out the leaf-hung bower
 And praise thy God.
 O river, for the life that swarms thy tide,
 And for the life that haunts thy banks around,
 That ever watch thy course and softly kiss
 Thee speeding surely seaward : for these things
 Lift up thy voice over thy chanting bars
 And praise thy God.

O sea, that raging restless round thy coasts,
 Tearing thy waves in spindrift passionate
 To sigh thyself to sleep, and croon along
 The palm-crowned coral, moaning deep-drawn sobs
 Upon the silver strands and beaches, strewn
 With plunder of thy storm-toss'd billows'
 wrath,
 Ghosts of the dead that lie within thy womb,
 Lazily swinging on thine endless tides,
 Wet ghosts, that ride thy winds and sport among
 Thy screaming sea-fowl, on thy wild wave's
 crest,
 Thy rolling monsters, deep in unplumbed depths
 That swarm with Life, and Death, and Mystery ;
 Because of these thy wonders, raise thy voice
 Over the foam-topp'd surge, and praise thy God.
 And we, O Beautiful, the human kind,
 Tho' not thy children, since by right of birth,
 Of likeness to God's image, we alone
 O'er all the creatures hold vice-regal power,
 Yet, when oppressed by Fate, weary to death,
 Crawl like abandoned children to thy knees,
 Weep out our grief and softly sink to sleep.
 And thou, with soft caresses, crooning low
 Weird, old-world songs, bend down thy Majesty
 And stretch protecting arms o'er us thy kind,
 Hiding and healing, till at last we rise,
 Crowned with a strength to wrest from Fate
 our way,
 Our thorny path of life—or die—and rest
 Happy again, in thine all-circling arms.

SKINNERS' DAY.

THE annual visitation of the Governors to the School took place on July 24th, 1915. Owing to the war the customary arrangements for the day were somewhat curtailed, the prize-giving taking place in the morning. By the special request of the Master of the Skinners' Company, Mr. W. W. Read, proceedings began as usual at 7 o'clock with the bathe and the cheering of the Governors.

At 10 o'clock the School assembled in uniform in front of the clock tower to receive the Skinners, the Captain of the School, E. C. Vise, delivering the oratio congratulatoria as follows:—

Anxio quidem animo vobis, O Pelliparii, orationem nostram profero, quippe qui vicarius officium susceperim pro illo qui hoc erat munere functurus nisi schola exiisset immaturior, libentissime nihilominus vos vestramque Societatem honoratissimam hic pro me ipso puerisque Tonbridgiensibus salvere iubeo.

Longe aliter videlicet ac solemus hodie convenimus, Nam.

Tempora mutantur nos et mutamur in illis. Mutantur diei caerimoniae. Desideramus ramos virentes, desideramus parentum atque amicorum solitos coetus. Mutatam vestem nostram videtis. Circumstant, ecce, condiscipuli mei habitu militari et—pace vestra dixerim—sordidulo. Unde igitur haec tanta morum veterum mutatio? Quae sit caussa ignorat nemo. Bellum crudelissimum, quod non per Europam modo sed etiam per omnem fere orbem terrarum discordiae semina sparsit, nos ipos haud intactos reliquit. Immo Martius quidam ardor qualis nunquam antea. Bellonae sese dedicant et pueri et magistri: quotidie sub signis exercemur, simulacra pugnae clemus, fossas transversas excavamus, nocturnas agimus excubias. Permulti sunt alumnorum nostrorum qui nisi incidisset pestis haec horribilis nobiscum hic adessent: absunt etiam magistrorum nonnulli, quorum unum praecipue desideramus, Antonium Simpson, qui nuper ad aciem Gallicam profectus morbo eheu! subito assumptus est. Huius ad memoriam rite conservandam ancile argenteum frater ac soror eius dono dederunt, quod in melius provehat earum cerum militarium studium quas ipse, dum nobis intererat praecipue fovebat. Quod si titulos ac nomina vultis exquirere eorum omnium qui vel in classe vel in exercitiis nostris merent alias alii, exponet ea vobis libellus ille, laboribus immensis Vvirovum strenuorum comparatus. Sunt qui in Imperatoris Summi litteris ob eximiam virtutem commendantur: sunt qui honoribus meritis ornati sunt: sunt quinquaginta fortes quos adeptos lugemus. Mors illis honestissima et gloria immortalis. Quorum ut fama semper virescat, in atrio longa tabellarum explicatur series. Abeamus nosmet ipsi et imitemur.

Nec sunt omittendi qui Minerva quoque colenda honores reportaverunt. Exstant in primis Robertus Hilary Stephanusque Buckland, qui primam classem meruerunt, hic apud Oxonenses, illic apud Cantabrigienses. Quid dicam de Ioanne Greenway, Hartleioque Moore, qui legati nuper in copias ascripti, has aedes

Socraticum et domum

Mutare loriceis Hiberis, maluerunt? Succedunt inde honoribus distincti Thomas Weldon, Archibaldus Douglas, Ioannes Langdon-Davies, Victor Newbery Gulielmus Heckstall-Smith, quorum nominibus sinite, precor, meam quoque addam. Digni sunt etiam mentione Elwyn Nott-Bower atque Haroldus Parsons, qui in Academia Militari palmam tulerunt, et Georgius Chick, qui linguae Persicae sollers interpres, Comes est electus Indici Imperii.

Gratias inde vobis agamus quia surgit tandem ad astra haec nova officina in usum lignariorum exstructa. Speramus fore ut eis qui scientiae machinali incumbunt copia maior machinarum opificumque supellex mox appareat, praesertim quod nulla nunc est officina quin tela globique ferrei ad artes hostium et insidias profligandas ibi excudantur.

Restat ut recentem et maximum enarrem dolorem. O fatum crudelissimum, quod tam subito nobis eripuit Edwardum Goldberg! Cuius virtutibus adumbrandis impar est facundia nostra. Quanta pars fuit vitae Tonbridgiensis, quantam adhibebat diligentiam si quid scholae fore commodo videbat. In tot tamque diversis rebus noti sunt labores eius. Adde quod vir ingenii praestantissimi, singularis comitatus exstitit, et erit manifestum qualem amiserimus.

Et nunc vos iterum saluto. Salve tu, vir Oxoniensis, qui tanta lenitate nostros errores et incipientiam pertulisti. Dolemus, mi crede, quod juvenis ille eruditissimus, qui paucis ante annis e curru orationem nobis habuit, e vita vulneribus confectus excessit. Salve quoque tu, Magister Societatis, salvete, vos omnes Pelliparii. Concedant fata ut vos anno insequenti felicioribus auspiciis excipiamus.

After the roll-call of all those boys who had joined the School since Skinners' Day, 1914, had been held, and the candidates for Leaving Exhibitions had been examined by the Governors, the Prize-giving took place in Big School at 11 o'clock.

The "Carmen Tonbridgiense" was sung, and Mr. Lowry was then called upon by the Worshipful Master for his report. He referred to the Old Tonbridgians who had joined the colours—83 boys and 9 masters of those who were at Tonbridge last Skinners' Day had gone—and especially to the gallant deaths, 52 in number, which had occurred among the 1,418 Tonbridgians at that time serving. He then spoke very feelingly of the great loss the School had incurred in the death of Mr. Goldberg, and paid a special tribute to the boys of Hill Side for their loyalty at such a trying time. Capt. Vere Hodge, he continued, had renounced his claim to be attached to the Royal West Kent Regt., and, remaining as Master at Hill Side, would continue his splendid work with the O.T.C., which during the year had shown a high standard of efficiency.

After thanking the Governors for the wood workshops, Mr. Lowry paid tribute to the conduct of the boys during the year. The war made them all realise that "To have done together great things in the past, to be minded to do great things in the present, that is the essential condition for the existence of a nation and of a Public School."

The Master of the Skinners, in his reply, referred to the ceaseless energy and devotion of Mr. Goldberg, who for twenty-five years gave of his best to Tonbridge School, and on behalf of the Governors tendered the deepest sympathy to Mrs. Goldberg. After regretting that owing to the war the erection of two new boarding houses had to be postponed, but the new wood workshops had been completed, Mr. Read mentioned that Mr. A. B. Baldwin, an Old Tonbridgian, who had recently died, had left £1,000 for the good of the School. With this money the Skinners' Company proposed to offer a War Exhibition of £60 per annum for a boy whose parents by reason of the war would not without assistance be able to send him to Tonbridge. The boy, further, must be either the son of an Old Tonbridgian or a member of the Skinners' Company. After a word of advice to the boys and a warm tribute to the work of the O.T.C., the speaker concluded with some brief allusions to the Great War, a war in which he declared it was right, not might, which would finally be vindicated.

The Worshipful Master now gave away the prizes as follows:—

O.T.C.

Though it was not possible for the Corps to go to Camp this year, a few Sergeants added to their experience of Camps by spending part of their holidays as instructors of Territorial 3rd Line recruits at Windsor, Tadworth, and elsewhere. They seem both to have enjoyed the novelty of their position and to have profited by their practice in training others. Some have had a useful insight into the Army methods of physical training; and this has been particularly in request just lately, inasmuch as the Corps has this Term definitely included gymnastics within the compass of its activities, and we derive much benefit from the enthusiastic assistance of Mr. Roche.

We have greatly missed Capt. Herman, both as company commander and lecturer; he is now at Chatham, having joined the 3rd Queen's Own. When his turn comes to go to France or the Dardanelles or, it may be, Serbia, he will be followed by the best wishes of us all. Lieut. M. S. Page succeeds to the command of A Company.

Though our Corps has lost in action many a gallant member since the war broke out, and it is impossible to name them all, much less pay them the tribute they deserve, yet one, George Cressey, cannot rightly be passed over in any chronicle of the O.T.C.; not only because his excellent work here is still so fresh in the memory, but because he had so deeply at heart the interests of the O.T.C., of which he was so fine a product and in which his career was unique. He spent six years in the Corps, attended Camp five times, and would have attended six but for appendicitis, obtained Certificate A, and was the Senior Cadet Officer of his time. In Camp above all he was in his element; and many will remember the infectious cheerfulness with which he began the day the very moment réveille sounded. We owe a debt of gratitude to one who at all times worked with all his might for the good of the O.T.C.

INSPECTION REPORT.

WAR OFFICE,
LONDON, S.W.,

July 24th, 1915.

SIR,—I am directed to forward the following remarks on the state of efficiency of the contingent under your command. The necessary certificate is enclosed.

In the case of the Junior Division, these remarks must be laid before the Headmaster.

Drill.—Very good. The contingent marched past and advanced in review order like seasoned troops. The handling of arms was good. Company drill was performed by the senior officers, who showed thorough knowledge of their work. Cadet officers drilled their platoons most creditably.

Manœuvre.—"A" Company under Captain Herman attacked a position defended by "B" Company.

The position of the enemy and the object and method of attack were most intelligently explained by this officer, details of carrying out the attack were left to platoon and section commanders, who had evidently been well taught. Fire control and discipline was good. I inspected some field entrenchments which had been dug by the cadets, under supervision of Captain Hodge. They were practical, and skilfully dug.

Discipline.—Good. The cadets were very steady on parade. No talking in the ranks. Orders were quickly and readily obeyed. Saluting by juniors when addressing seniors was particularly smart.

Turn Out.—Very good. Some of the clothing is old, but is being replaced as funds permit; all that is in use is well cared for, and everything possible is done to combine economy with smartness.

Signalling.—Corps consists of one cadet officer and fifteen cadets. They can signal in Morse code or Semaphore. Their work was very good.

Arms and Equipment.—All in very good order. The Armoury is a very good one and is really well kept. All the rifles I examined were clean.

General Remarks.—This contingent is thoroughly efficient, all the officers knew their work, and showed the greatest zeal and keenness, and were able to get the best out of the cadets, who drilled splendidly. I feel I should be failing in my duty if I did not call attention to the excellence of the work done by Captain Vere Hodge, commanding the contingent. All through my inspection the results of this officer's untiring efforts were apparent not only in the drill and discipline of the Corps, but in its organisation and general management.

I am, sir,

Your obedient servant,
(Sgd.) W. ADYE, Colonel,
for Director of Military Training.

Extract from London Gazette.—Dated October 2, 1915, Lieut. F. G. Swan, to be temporary Captain; 2nd Lieut. R. L. Aston, to be temporary Lieutenant.

CRICKET.

THE SCHOOL v. CLIFTON.

THIS match was played on Monday and Tuesday, July 26th and 27th, on the "Head" and resulted in a draw. Clifton batted first on a fairly easy wicket and made a good start. Bickmore was the first to leave at 67, who, though missed behind the wicket first ball, played a fairly steady innings of 24. 67 runs were put on for the second wicket and then Lovelace bowled both Hawkes and Campbell in the same over. The former played a hard-hit innings of 62, and, although perhaps he did not always play with a straight bat, he was always interesting to watch; Campbell was probably the best bat on the side and made clean, crisp shots all round the wicket. Leslie was the only other bat who really showed any confidence, and he was finally bowled, mistiming a short-pitched ball from Lewis. Hussey managed to keep his end up and was not out at the finish, though he never gained any mastery over the bowling. The innings finally closed for 254.

The School replied with a score of 191. Only two men batted well—Lovelace and Fitzgerald. The former hit very hard indeed for 48, making some excellent shots round to leg off Mathias. Fitzgerald played far better than ever before, and scored a very steady 54 not out. Hammond showed that he was not so easy to get out as he looked by staying in twenty minutes for 2 runs and giving Fitzgerald very material assistance.

In the second innings of Clifton, two wickets fell in the first over, and Leslie was very neatly caught at square-leg at 13. Hawkes soon left and then Taberer and Bassett put up a stubborn resistance. They brought the score to 114, and then Ritchie played very soundly for 32 before he was run out. Clifton then made a sporting declaration, leaving the School 229 runs to make in a little under two hours. They never looked like making the runs, although Sherwell played very well for 69. When stumps were drawn the School had made 133 for the loss of five wickets, Goodman being not out after a well-played 20. Lovelace bowled very well throughout the match and once more thoroughly proved his worth as an all-round cricketer.

This match was entirely ruined by rain, though it must be confessed that if the tea intervals had not been so inordinately long the match would have stood a much better chance of being brought to a conclusion.

TONBRIDGE v. WESTMINSTER.

This match was played at Vincent Square, London, and was won by Tonbridge by 147 runs, a result largely due to the excellent batting at a critical time of Goodman and Hedges.

Westminster went in first, and made a total of 182. Andrews played well for 98, but the batting rather lacked dash and initiative. The Tonbridge bowling, weakened by the absence of Hammond, was not very good; Lewis bowled well and Goodman bowled some good balls: the fielding was fair, but two fairly easy chances of c and b were missed, and it was not as good as usual. When Tonbridge went in Sherwell began getting runs at once, but he never played well, made some poor strokes in the slips, and was bowled for 20—a poor innings for him. Tester failed, but Boucher played excellent cricket, well supported by Hedges, who methodically played himself in, and then set out to win the match. When Boucher was lbw at 93, he had played the best innings of the day, and showed clearly what a much improved batsman he is. Culhane and Lovelace were out quickly, and the crisis of the match arrived. Tonbridge had 77 to get, and five wickets to lose. Goodman started well, and with Hedges playing excellently, our prospects improved: so did the batsmen, both playing splendid cricket, and the runs were hit off without further loss. At 200 Hedges was stumped for an invaluable 89. The close of his Tonbridge cricket season has been brilliant, and the improvement both he and Boucher have made this season is astonishing. Fitzgerald came in with the match fairly safe, and played very well, while Goodman hit fast and furiously. Together they took the score to 294: then both got out, Goodman for a brilliant 106, Fitzgerald for a very well-played 43. Nichols hit well at the end, and the total was 329. Stumps were then drawn, Tonbridge winning by 147 runs. It was very satisfactory to win, and the more so as so much work was done towards it by the novices in the team, Goodman, Fitzgerald, Lewis: the batting of the side was bright and interesting, the bowling and fielding fair, but a little lifeless. Hedges kept wicket very well.

FOOTBALL.

SCHOOL v. R. E. LE FLEMING'S XV.

On Saturday, October 9th, the School played R. E. Le Fleming's XV. on the Fifty and lost by 16 points to 3. The School kicked off and for some time there was some uneventful play in the centre of the field before Liebenrood secured the ball and after a good run almost scored in the corner. For a considerable time now the forwards saw most of the play, and in this department of the game the School did not show up very favourably; they were rushed off their feet on several occasions and were never quick enough upon the ball from a kick; the result was that play was pushed into the School "25," and finally G. W. Frend scored a scrambling try for our opponents which was afterwards converted. After the kick-off play again returned into the School half, but Lovelace relieved the pressure by a good kick. For the last ten minutes of the first half the School play brightened up: J. H. Weldon started two good movements, but nothing came of them. Just before half time the forwards made an excellent rush led by Porter and almost looked like scoring had not W. G. Frend made a clever save.

At half time the score stood at 5-0 against the School, and on the resumption of play the opponents immediately began to press very hard, so that finally their inside left three-quarters cut through and scored; W. G. Frend converted. Le Fleming, realising his superiority in the scrum, now played an extra man in the "three" line, and consequently our inside three-quarters were hard put to it on several occasions to repulse some very dangerous movements. It was now that the School scored their only try. J. H. Weldon started a very good run by the three-quarters so that Clarke almost scored in the corner before he was pushed into touch; Allan was smartly up to the mark and easily managed to get the ball and score from the throw-in. Our opponents scored twice more before "no side," once from a forward rush in the corner and once also when Liebenrood managed to cut in and score again in the corner.

The School's defeat was due chiefly to their inferiority in the scrum, so that they hardly ever gave their three-quarters a chance; they were also very slow upon the ball from the "25" kicks; Porter, however, played an excellent game. Behind the scrum Lovelace was the best, his kicking and tackling being very good indeed, and it was largely due to him that our opponents did not score more often when they were playing an extra man behind the scrum. Whitehead's form was also very promising, and he did well not to let W. G. Frend score on several occasions.

Mr. Gordon kindly acted as referee.

The following represented the School:—

N. H. Thackrah (back); R. D. Lovelace, J. H. Weldon, R. G. Clarke, and A. R. Whitehead (three-quarters); G. H. Phippard and R. C. Culhane (halves); W. Porter, T. E. Wimshurst, A. E. Allan, C. S. Newcomb, L. L. Nott-Bower, C. W. H. Weldon, C. B. S. Fuller, and G. G. E. Churcher (forwards).

SCHOOL v. 3RD BATT. GLOUCESTER REGT.

ON Saturday, October 16th, the School played the 3rd Batt. Gloucester Regt. on the "Fifty" and won by 18 points to 6. In the first half the School showed a marked superiority, the score being 15—0 at half time. On resumption of play Clarke soon scored in the corner, but the try was not converted. From this point the School play seemed to slacken and almost till the end of the game the Gloucesters saw most of the game and managed to get two forward tries before "time."

The School forwards improved considerably upon their performance the previous week. Porter again played a very hard game and was very unfortunate to be kicked in the side towards the end of the game. Of the other forwards C. W. H. Welldon and Beadle were the most conspicuous, though the former on occasions showed a tendency to be somewhat selfish.

The backs, however, did not play quite at their best, most of them showing a desire to "cut in" far too often. Whitehead was perhaps the best; Marshall played a very plucky game on his first appearance for the School, and ought to develop into a good scrum half.

After the match Porter received his colours.

Mr. Gordon kindly acted as referee.

The following represented the School:—

N. H. Thackrah (back); R. D. Lovelace, A. R. Whitehead, J. H. Welldon, and R. G. Clarke (three-quarters); G. H. Phippard and W. R. Marshall (halves); W. Porter, A. E. Allan, C. W. H. Welldon, C. S. Newcomb, G. C. Beadle, L. L. Nott-Bower, G. D. Hale, and E. M. B. West (forwards).

SCHOOL v. H.A.C.

THE match was played on the "Fifty" at 3 o'clock on Wednesday, October 20th, and resulted in a win for the School by 14 points to 4. The School won the toss and played during the first half towards the new ground. Our opponents did not play a very combined game, but had they profited to the fullest extent from our mistakes the result of the match would have been very different.

The play was spirited, and the forwards backed up more regularly than usual. They did not, however, get in behind the ball quickly enough, perhaps owing to the fact that they did not watch it sufficiently carefully. Newton played a hard game, and Allan and Beadle showed up frequently. Several smart pieces of dribbling were done by Newcomb. Of the backs Lovelace played well, but showed too much inclination to feint rather than to feed his outside man. Earle was rather shaky with regard to his passes, and in consequence Welldon, playing outside three-quarters, found he did not often receive the ball. Tries were scored by Lovelace (3) and Nott-Bower; our opponents scored their four points from a very neat left-footed drop kick.

Mr. Gordon very kindly refereed.

The following represented the School:—

N. H. Thackrah (back); J. H. Welldon, G. P. W. Earle, R. D. Lovelace, A. R. Whitehead (three-quarters); W. R. Marshall, G. H. Phippard (halves); A. E. Allan, F. Newton, C. W. H. Welldon, G. C. Beadle, C. S. Newcomb, L. L. Nott-Bower, G. D. Hale, E. M. B. West (forwards).

THE SCHOOL v. R.M.A., WOOLWICH.

ON Saturday, October 23rd, the School played the R.M.A. at Woolwich, and won by 11 points to 6. We have no reason to congratulate ourselves on the result of this match as our opponents had hardly played together at all. Our forwards during the first half got the ball nearly every time in the tight scrums, and the way our backs failed to make use of their opportunities was deplorable. It was the old tale of passes badly given and badly taken. The forwards were somewhat clumsy in the loose, and were outclassed in the line-out. At half time there was no score, and the game promised to be exciting. The School were now playing downhill and the backs began to improve. Three tries were soon scored by Well-don, Galpin and Lovelace: the latter converted his own try. Our opponents' forwards at this point made a fine rally, and had the best of the game for some time. We occasionally broke away, but the ball was generally in our half. The backs were now slow in getting on to their men, and the tackling was poor. Our opponents scored twice, but that was all they could do, and we began to assert ourselves again towards the end. On the whole the performance of the team was most unsatisfactory; they lacked both cohesion and combination. Heap made a most promising first appearance at full back, but no other individual performances are worthy of mention. After the match Allan and Newton received their colours.

The following represented the School:—

A. W. Heap (back); J. H. Welldon, R. D. Lovelace, C. B. Bouchier, and E. D. Galpin (three-quarters); G. H. Phippard and W. R. Marshall (halves); C. H. Evans, A. E. Allan, F. Newton, T. E. Wimshurst, G. C. Beadle, C. W. H. Welldon, L. L. Nott-Bower, and C. S. Newcomb (forwards).

SCHOOL v. UPPINGHAM.

THIS match was played on the "Fifty" on Saturday, October 30th, and resulted in a win for Uppingham by 26 points to 8. This was the first time that Uppingham had played together in a match, and after the School had scored 8 points in the first ten minutes there were hopes that we should at last have our revenge for the defeats of the past few years; but it was not to be—Uppingham got together, and we never scored again. At half time the score was 9—8; but in the second half our opponents showed a marked superiority and scored five times. The School was really just outclassed in all departments of the game, but it was the "speed" of the Uppingham backs that had most to do with it—our three-quarters were run off their legs. Our opponents were also lucky to possess an excellent pair of halves, who knew each other's play to a nicety and gave their three-quarters every chance. It must be owned, too, that the training of the School team as a whole did not seem all that it might have been; they slackened off considerably during the second half, comparing very unfavourably with our opponents.

To come to individual performances. Of the backs J. H. Welldon was quite the best; he was invaluable in defence, often drawing the inside three-quarter and finally tackling the wing man. He and Earle did the lion's share of the work in the three-quarter line; the latter seems quite to have found his place on the wing. Lovelace was disappointing; he did not take his man and did not make full use of his weight in attack. Heap at full back, considering his speed and weight, played a very creditable game; he never lost his head and saved the School on several occasions. Of the forwards nobody was conspicuous, though perhaps Porter was the best; as a whole they were the heavier pack and ought to have done a little better than they did.

After the match J. H. Welldon received his colours.

Mr. A. J. Trollope kindly acted as referee.

The following represented the School:—

A. W. Heap (back); G. P. W. Earle, J. H. Welldon, R. D. Lovelace, and A. R. Whitehead (three-quarters); W. R. Marshall and G. H. Phippard (halves); C. H. Evans, W. Porter, A. E. Allan, T. E. Wimshurst, C. W. H. Welldon, G. C. Beadle, L. L. Nott-Bower, and C. S. Newcomb (forwards).

2ND XV. MATCHES.

On Saturday, October 2nd, the School 2nd XV. played the 1/2nd W. Lan. Field Ambulance, R.A.M.C., on the "Fifty," and won by 27 points to 5. They showed a marked superiority, especially behind the scrum; but the R.A.M.C. played a plucky game and scored in the last three minutes. Of the backs Whitehead and J. H. Welldon played especially well, and of the forwards Newcomb and C. W. H. Welldon. The tries were scored by J. H. Welldon (3), Whitehead (3), and Galpin (1).

Mr. Gordon kindly refereed.

The following represented the School:—

N. H. Thackrah (back); A. R. Whitehead, E. D. Galpin, G. H. Phippard, and J. H. Welldon (three-quarters); F. W. Bennett and A. L. Garratt (halves); C. S. Newcomb, C. W. H. Welldon, L. L. Nott-Bower, G. D. Hale, G. G. E. Churcher, E. M. B. West, G. C. Beadle, and G. S. Gamble (forwards).

2ND XV. v. HAILEYBURY XXX.

This match was played on Saturday, September 23rd, at Haileybury, and resulted in a loss for the School by 25 points to nil. The School owe this defeat partly to the lack of decision on the part of the back play, partly to the fact that the forwards were so slow in breaking up from the "scrums" and generally outclassed in the open, and partly to weak tackling throughout the side. Hedges played a very promising game at fly-half, and Furze-Morrish did his work well, but no one else was conspicuous.

The following represented the School:—

N. H. Thackrah (back); R. G. Clarke, G. M. Harper, E. P. Lewis, L. S. R. B. Furze-Morrish (three-quarters); R. C. Culhane and L. P. Hedges (halves); G. D. Hale, E. M. B. West, C. B. S. Fuller, G. G. E. Churcher, F. D. S. Richardson, E. E. Maneck, G. S. Gamble, and T. F. S. Sawyer (forwards).

CORRESPONDENCE.

[N.B.—The Editors do not hold themselves responsible for the opinions expressed by their correspondents.]

To the Editors of THE TONBRIDGIAN.

DEAR SIRS,—When listening to the singing of the Choir during our Sunday services, I have noticed one prominent flaw which has of necessity been observed by everyone. I refer to the “Amens” that follow the beautifully worded Prayers for the War read by the Headmaster. As these Prayers are not all known as yet, and as they have not, for the most part, customary endings, the organist is totally unable to know the final words. The result is either the striking of a chord in the middle or the omission of one at the end, whereupon the Choir is naturally at a loss.

As no blame is to be laid on either the reader or the organist, might I suggest with all respect that a copy of the prayers be made for the use of the organist? Or an alternative would be to omit singing the “Amens” during that part of the service. In both cases the service would lack the present uncomfortable tension felt, almost universally, during those prayers; but in the latter case the service would be less bright as the School is traditionally weak at speaking “Amens,” whereas should the former case be adopted the best results would be obtained.

I remain, Sirs,
Yours truly,
ZERO.

To the Editors of THE TONBRIDGIAN.

DEAR SIRS,—May I be allowed to venture a suggestion, which very probably has already struck many others. Briefly it is this: when any member of our team is awarded his 1st XV. colours, the School as a whole never has an opportunity of showing its appreciation of the fact. Could we not imitate our Uppingham brethren, our captain performing some ceremony at the entrance to the “Fifty” where the School waits after a match. We could then cheer those who had been “told” instead of having to glean fourth or fifth-hand information, let alone not being able to show our approval.

Yours, etc.,
HERO-WORSHIPPER.
